About the FIG:

Are you interested in science and wondering how it can fit with your plans for college, and life beyond? We'll talk about how to make science, college, and life work together for you.

Here are some things we'll get into:

- What is research and why should it interest you? How to take advantage of research at UO.
- Helping your professors help you
- Building a career based in science.
- What are employers looking for? One thing employers say they want is critical thinkers. What does this mean in science? How does a first year science student think critically?
- How to use your college experience to make employers interested in you – Start early!
- And much more!
